With the completion of the above-noted unit, the present capacity of Shawinigan is brought up to 809,200 h.p., making it one of the largest producers of water power in the world. The Rapide Blanc development is running well ahead of schedule and the construction department of the company are deserving of congratulations on the successful completion of these units, as in carrying out of the work they have had to operate under the most adverse weather conditions since the inception of the company.
